

Adoptive Feature: Dane County Humane Society by Jeanne Engle

For almost a century, Dane County Humane Society (DCHS) at 50 Virginia Ave. Madison, Wisconsin, has been a place where people can find a furry friend. The organization has a long history of providing care and shelter to animals in need. DCHS is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. For more information, visit www.dchs.org.

In 2018, DCHS had its largest year in adoption + sheltering + rehoming + transfers combined in its history. The center also took in record numbers of animals as well as animals transferred from local and out-of-state veterinary practices.

As a public, nonprofit organization, DCHS relies on community support to keep the doors open. We are grateful for the many ways our community members support us, from financial contributions to volunteer hours.
